

Sinclair Broadcast Group is another obvious right wing organization bent on brainwashing those who they deem necessary to further the ongoing cultural war without bullets that so many right wing conservatives are forcing on the mainstream.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

In addition to Sinclair, there is the ultra conservative media giant, Clear Channel doing the same thing on our radio airwaves.

Sinclair, Clear Channel and other right wing broadcasting groups prove why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard.
Thank you, James Kelley
